

Bord Waalk trail – a handy map

Posted on 20th January 2023 | in Bord Waalk, Community, Heritage & Tourism, Leisure

Many people are enjoying the Bord Waalk sculptures and have asked for more information on them. The app will be ready very soon, and there will be leaflets available once the sculptures are all finished. But in the meantime, here's a basic map of the Bord Walk sculptures.

There will soon be an app for iOS and Android devices which will include info on all the sculptures and artists, plus poetry, birdsong and soundscapes.

There is no definitive start or finish to the trail, but this map begins at the Turner St car park and heads north to the Braid. It then returns to the town centre, before heading east and south along the Northumberland Coast Path towards Hauxley.

You can of course visit the bords in any order you choose. Whichever way, we hope you enjoy your waalk.

Bord Waalk trail info Jan 2023  Please note this has been updated **

#1: Recycled Terns by Diane Watson in the Turner St car park (still to be installed)

#2: Bird Song by Aether and Hemera is on the Braid near the Beacon

#3: Flock Sphere by Rob Mulholland is next to the Coquet Shorebase

#4: Tern by Jon Voss, close to the Braid entrance and the Warkworth road

#5: Dokies Egg by Alec Finlay along the estuary towards Warkworth

Existing art now part of the trail:

#6: East window in St Cuthberts church

#7: Peace sculpture by Stephen Lunn in the Town Sq

#8: Bird Heads by Andrew Burton are in the Town Square

#9: Uplift by Jonny Michie is on Spurreli's roof

#10: Cracked Eggs by Stuart Langley, at the top of Horseshoe Hill (still to be installed)

#11: Big Puffin by Ben Greenwell is in Paddlers Park

#12: Murmuration by local artist Frances Anderson, located next to the East Cemetery

#13: Brick Tree by Rodney Harris which incorporates nesting spaces for birds is located on the cycle path at Low Hauxley

#14: Roseate Terns by Celia Smith, at the entrance to Hauxley Nature Reserve

Related articles:

Bord Waalk: latest landings

The Bord Waalk sculpture trail is growing steadily. More sculptures have been installed in recent weeks, ... Continue reading

The Ambler

Bird sculpture trail progresses

The latest sculpture in the 'Bord Waalk' trail has just been installed, to the evident delight ... Continue reading

The Ambler

